Verity Street Verity Street is a street in the Docklands area of Melbourne, Australia. It is a long and narrow industrial street running parallel to the northern boundary of the Geelong docks and the western boundary of the Melbourne docks. Route description The main thoroughfare of the street is named Newell Street, and the remainder of the street is known as Verity Street. Verity Street begins at Queen Street, crosses Newell Street and continues north parallel to the River Yarra to Maribyrnong Street, and then turns east to finish at Gough Street. At its north-eastern end, the street briefly becomes Townsend Street. Transport The passenger ferry service that was operated from 1962 to 1995 between Queensbridge and the Northern Docklands was located on Verity Street. References Category:Roads in Melbourne

Part of what makes the Warriors so good this season is the fact they have the option of resting a lot of their star players (or any of them, really), and still be competitive. The Warriors, of course, are making that choice very deliberately and with great benefit to the season. They're matching up decently with
