(PDF-Version. .Yep, I'm an old lady!! I'm now a 'post-menopausal' old lady, and well past the usual age of "menopause". I live on the ocean, and so one of the things I do is pass the day (or the period) looking out at the water. Sometimes I look for boats. Sometimes I look for whales. Sometimes I look to try and count the billions of seabirds. Sometimes I look to try and count the billions of fish. Some days there are at least a few boats. Sometimes there is a whale or even a flotilla of whales. Sometimes there are lots of boats, and sometimes there is none. Sometimes there are lots of seabirds, and sometimes there are none. Sometimes there are lots of fish, and sometimes there are none. Sometimes I wonder why in the world they all show up at the same time, but come and go so I rarely see even half of what I look at. Fish are just as mysterious and full of questions. Why do they do as they do? Why can't they just stay on land? Where do they eat? Where do they sleep? Why do they need to eat? Why do they get food? Where do they go to mate? Why can't they just get along with other fish? Why don't they all just live in the same place? Why can't they just get along with each other? And on and on and on and on and on and on and on... I'm sure you must have other things to do in your day, but it's always fun to watch the fish. And sometimes they make me think that, if only humans could be as calm, we might be able to relax a little more. I'm sure I'm not alone in this. I know there is a lot that I
